IN A CHINESE SALOON.

The Seductive Beverage Known as Samshu and its Sale.

TALK WITH THE PROPRIETOR.

Exterior and Interior View of the Place—Circular Counter and Doors Without Screens—Liquor Sold Only by the Bottle—Kat Poo and his Man

Kat Poo—thereby hangs a tale, being the name of the Chinaman who has had enterprise enough to open a liquor store. The situation of the establishment is midway between Hotel and King streets on the Waikiki side of Nuuanu. The general appearance of the place is decidedly American. Were it not for the Chinese characters that surround the name of "Kat Poo" on the sign in front of the store and also the two Mongolian faces that are to be seen at all hours behind the counter, one might take the establishment for anything but Chinese.

To begin with the glass at either side of the entrance is painted red, and upon this the name of the proprietor and the contents of the store in black.

There is no screen to shut out the gaze of those who might be shocked by seeing an intimate friend on the inside; but then there is no drinking done there.
Each and every man, woman and child is required to buy a bottle duly sealed with dirty sealing wax and stamped with the name "Kat Poo" or go home empty-handed.

Three incandescent electric lights brighten the room at night time and disclose to view a semi-circle counter toward the entrance.

Against the back wall and a little distance from the counter is a series of circular shelves decreasing in size toward the top. Holes in these furnish convenient resting place for the bottles. Above this is a sign which the proprietor translated as follows: "Any kine samshu; heap good."

The proprietor is a jolly good fellow with a singularly Chinese face and a more than ordinary tightness to the plaiting of his queue, which, it has been learned, is a sign of prosperity. He is very willing to talk and volunteers all sorts of information, bearing of course upon points in relation to his business. He has an assistant, who furnishes what information the proprietor cannot think of on the spur of the moment. This important personage wears a blank expression upon his face, and when he speaks rolls his eyes toward the sealed bottles, which is most probably his way of showing admiration for the seductive beverage.

The proprietor shows superiority over his assistant by letting his legs hang naturally from the floor, while the latter tucks the heels of his feet under him, no matter upon what he is seated.

When alone, which is not often, the pair sit in silence, the proprietor dabbling ink on his books with a Chinese brush and the assistant scratching his leg.

In conversation with the proprietor some interesting information was gleaned which, in order to be rendered intelligible, will be translated from its somewhat doubtful form into English.

"I have been here about three weeks and have come to the conclusion that the liquor business is very good. I had never realized before that the Chinese and others were so fond of samshu.

"No, samshu is not the name of any particular liquor. It is the Chinese name for spirituous liquors of all kinds. Many people, not Chinese, frequently come here and ask me for samshu. Now, such a request is very confusing to me.

"Now, then, I have wines, whisky and gin of many Chinese brands here. The gin is white, the whisky yellowish, and the majority of the wine red. You may be surprised when I tell you that all Chinese liquors are manufactured from rice, but such is the case. Were it not for rice there would be no Chinamen—not because liquor is made from that cereal, but because its uses in China are innumerable.

"The power of intoxication of our liquor, I claim, to be above the average, but, then, I would not have this go abroad, as it might have a very bad effect, particularly since everything in my store is so cheap. The highest priced article in the house is only $1.50. I am sorry I cannot let you have a taste of my Hongkong best, but it has been a rule with me never to open a bottle as my good-heartedness would soon get the better of me, and, then—my wife. However, I can put you on the track of some one that has bought liquor here recently, and he might do something for you.

"My customers? Well, that is rather an embarrassing question, for I do not like to give away the weaknesses of my patrons. But I will tell you that most of my patronage comes from Chinese and Hawaiians. White men are not very far behind. Those who come here once always return.

"No, I cannot give credit. Oh, you do not want credit? Well, of course, to my good customers I give credit; but know the limit to which I can safely go.

"All my liquor comes from Hongkong, to which place it is brought from surrounding smaller towns and cities.

"You remark upon the irregularity in size of bottles. Well, you see, most of the bottles used for liquor are mixed ones shipped to China from foreign ports. A large cargo was sent away from here recently. These bottles are collected anywhere and everywhere. Chinese are not particular what the samshu is put in, so they get it.

"Well, I thought you were going to buy something. You are a newspaper man? I can open a bottle if you want me to, but it is against my rules."

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

Pleasant Dinner Party Tendered S.
G. Wilder Last Evening.

Unique Cards in Water Colors Furnished Guests—Pleasant Reception Follows Collation—Guests.

The birthday of Samuel G. Wilder was not forgotten, and last evening a most pleasant dinner was tendered the young man by his mother at the family residence, Judd street, in honor of the event.

Seated around the table with Mr. Wilder were George C. Potter, Walter Dillingham, C. H. W. Norton, Harry Whitney, D. Howard Hitchcock, F. W. Thrum, Paul F.
De La Vergne, Charles Hyde, Robt.
Atkinson, J. O. Carter, Jr., Charles Hyde, Armstrong Smith and Wm.
H. Coney.

Artistic hands had transformed the table into a perfect bower of beauty. Red carnations strewn here and there were set off by a long streamer of navy blue ribbons wound around in graceful curves.
The candelabras, with red candles and shades of the same color, cast a soft glow over the whole.

The surprise of the evening was found in the dinner cards that were laid at the places of the various guests. Each one was startled by an apparition of himself cleverly placed in water colors upon a card by the hand of D. Howard Hitchcock. The favorite occupations of some and the striking attitudes of others furnished food for much amusement, and, in some cases, gave hints for good resolutions.

After dinner the boys repaired to the drawing room, where they were pleased to find Mrs. S. G. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Wight, Mr. and Mrs.
George Carter, Mr. and Mrs. von Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Ballou, Mrs.
Gunn, the Misses Hartwell (2), Miss Wilder and Miss Estelle.

The remainder of the evening was spent in the rendition of favorite songs, English and Hawaiian, and in the enjoyment of pleasant converse.

Mr. Wilder was the recipient of the hearty congratulations and good wishes of a large number of friends.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In many instances the attack may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by all druggists and dealers. BRINSON, SMITH & Co.

A TOURIST IN HAWAII.

He Finds Many Pleasant Things to Write About.

GENERAL TREATISE ON CLIMATE.

Impressions of a Stranger Recorded in a Happy Vein—Unstinted Praise for Government and People—Believes that the Islands Should be Annexed.

A young French journalist visited the United States some years ago and then went home, and did what all Frenchmen and most other Europeans who have ever been to America do—sooner or later—wrote a book about Americans and their country. But Mr. O'Rell's book differed from most of the others, in that what he said was, as to the greater part, true, and he prefaced what he had to say with the statement that the most universal characteristic he had noticed on his visit was the desire on the part of every one he met to know what he thought of the country.

Mr. O'Rell was right, and it is because my experience in Honolulu has been much the same as was his in the United States that I am tempted to write down those things which have most impressed me, an entire stranger, before the impressions have grown old or become dull by time and habit.

To one coming from the harsh, changeable winter of the northern States, Honolulu, with its perpetual summer, its tropical foliage and its pretty cottages, set far back from the streets, seem so beautiful, and life in its semi-tropical climate so indolent and restful, that I hardly know how to describe the beauty of the one or the charm of the other; a beauty and a charm which seem to be the outgrowth of all things taken together, so that it is difficult to analyze them, and to put one's finger on any one thing and say that in it lies that which goes to make life here so pleasant.

It is all pleasant. It is pleasant to sit out on the veranda in the evening, these beautiful evenings of January; it is extremely pleasant to bathe at Waikiki, in January; it is even pleasant to see men and women moving leisurely about, dressed all in white, with the manner of people on a perpetual picnic, that is never to be left off.
Then, too, to one coming, as I have come, from a part of the United States too far East, and too busy with its own affairs to keep informed, except in the most general way, as to what is going on here. All the conveniences and luxuries that are to be found in Honolulu include paved streets, probably the most complete telephone system in the world, tram-cars, electric lights —all these things come as a revelation. And, perhaps, the greatest revelation of all is that a municipality (lying far out in the Pacific), thousands of whose inhabitants are drawn from the Orient, should be governed in a manner that is not surpassed in Paris or Berlin, and is not nearly equalled in Chicago or New York; and should maintain a police department that would cause Dr. Parkhurst and the Civic Federation of Chicago to turn green with envy. And the most surprising part of it is that it did not take either a Dr. Parkhurst or a Civic Federation to accomplish all this.

Of the people I have met during the short time I have been here I do not intend to write. The characteristics of our race are the same the world over—the women are as attractive in Honolulu as in New York, or London or Paris; and the men are as shrewd and keen and generous and liberal, whether they live in the Hawaiian Republic, or in England or America. I do not know many residents here, but it goes without saying that those I do know are not one whit the inferiors of their brothers and sisters in the United States and England. In fact, I should say that the average here is perceptibly higher than in cities of a similar size in America with which I am acquainted.

These are some of the things which have impressed me. Every day brings something new in the way of a pleasant surprise, and I can only hope that a longer residence will confirm me in the first idea I have formed, chief among those being the one that these enchanted islands, with all their beauty and all fruitfulness, inhabited largely by the dominant race of the world, ought to be so united, commercially and politically, with that other larger Republic which so many of us call home, that we could have free intercourse, the one with the other and be citizens all of that government which, for a hundred years, has been the wonder of the civilized globe, and of which, in case such a union were accomplished, these islands would form a part in which the rest could take as much pride as it now takes in any one of its many states.

HAWAIIAN SUGAR.

Cargoes to be Shipped from the Islands Around the Horn.

Anticipating a short sugar crop in Cuba on account of the revolution there, the sugar trust has contracted for the delivery in Philadelphia and New York of large quantities of Hawaiian raw sugars.
Eight large ships have been chartered to load full cargoes at Honolulu for the Delaware Breakwater for orders, for which they will receive $5.75 per ton freight. The crop of Hawaiian sugar for shipment is reported as unusually large, and from present appearances much of it will be shipped direct to the Atlantic coast. Claus Spreckels is said to have acted for the trust and to have secured options on nearly the entire crop.
The fleet of sailing craft already chartered for Atlantic ports includes the ships Iroquois, Roanoke, H. Villard, Drigo, Indiana, Reaper, Occidental and W. F. Babcock.

ZAMLOCH ENTERTAINS.

Prince Luigi of Savoy and Suite Present Saturday Evening.

Hundreds Turned Away from the Doors.
Standing Room in Great Demand—More Performances.

Mr. Waldron, for Prof. Zamloch, should feel proud of his position, which proves to the public that he is a Napoleon of managers. Notwithstanding, an old newspaper man, he has for over 25 years been connected with first-class companies, both dramatic and musical.
Prof. Zamloch's soiree Saturday evening was carried out in every detail, and everything worked in splendid order. Consul Schaefer and lady, Prince Luigi of Savoy and suite, arrived at quarter past eight o'clock and were shown to their seats by Mr. Waldron, while the National hymn of Italy was being played by Prof. Berger. The Y. M. C. A. hall was crowded with the elite of Honolulu and many from interior towns. The only regret of the evening was that large numbers of people were turned from the doors unable to gain admission. This fact alone shows the great increasing popularity of Prof. Zamloch's wonderful exhibitions.

The public will hear with pleasure that he has been engaged to appear five nights more in his "Temple of Mystery" (formerly the Japanese Theatre) corner of Richards and Merchant streets commencing tomorrow evening.
This is done, as the Y. M. C. A. hall was previously engaged. The place is being refitted, painted and will be put in fine order. The management have kindly consented to place the general admission at 50 cents, children under 12 years 25 cents, reserved seat chairs, 75 cents, are now on sale at the Hobson Drug Company.

Prof. Zamloch has a fund of mysterious things to present. His performance is refined and worthy the patronage of every one. No one should miss the opportunity of hearing and seeing him.

That Tired Feeling

I as common complaint and it is a dangerous symptom. It means that the system is debilitated because of impure blood, and in this condition it is especially liable to attacks of disease.
Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for this condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently on the bowels and liver. HOBSON DRUG
